DOCTOR B. FENDALL,

Regular bred Surgeon Dentist.

AND who has been in practice for near thirty years, has just arrived in Alexandria, and may be seen and consulted at Brook's tavern, at any time during his continuance in it. The earlier applications are made to the Doctor by those who feel disposed to employ him as a Dentist, the better, as his continuance in Alexandria is very uncertain. Those ladies and gentlemen, in Alexandria, who find it inconvenient to wait on the Doctor, he will readily attend, on the shortest notice.

Dr. Fendall cures the scurvy in the gums, he is ever so inveterate, in a short time, twenty four hours at farthest; fastens loose teeth by making the gums grow up to them, renders the teeth white and beautiful; prevents their decay; keeps such as are so from becoming worse, even to old age; fills up teeth that are hollow with gold, with foil or lead which will not only render them useful, but prevent their aching and further decay; cures loose teeth and stumps with ease; makes and fixes artificial teeth. His Columbian Antiseptic Dentifrice, for preserving the teeth, gums, sockets, &c. and superior to any other, is still sold by the Doctor.

NATIVE POETRY.

The following acknowledgment to a correspondent is copied from The Star, a paper of distinguished literary merit, published at Raleigh, N.C.

"Gen. St. Clair's defeat is an unfortunate event in the annals of America, & the much individual bravery was displayed in the battle of St. Marys, it is a circumstance which the pride of an American will never delight to recollect. The account of it in verse which we have just received from an obligating correspondent claims to relate facts with fidelity; a merit which we are ready most cheerfully to acknowledge that it probably possesses, but though it describes a battle, it is rather deficient in Homeric sublimity and fire. As the poem is a long one we hope the writer will be satisfied with the following verses extracted from it which are offered as a specimen of the whole.

"November the fourth, in the year of ninety-one,
We had a sore engagement near Fort-Jefferson;
St. Clair was our commander which may remembered be,
For he there lost nine hundred men in the Western Territory.
"We had not long engaged till general Butler fell,
He cries my boys I'm wounded, pray take me off the field, My God, says he, what shall we do, we are murdered every man, Go charge my valiant heroes, and beat them if you can.
"There was Kelso and brave Beatty, subalterns unto power, Most boldly they led on their men three quarters of an hour, They both were slain upon the plain, like saints resigned were they, Beatty smiling, said fight on my boys, while bleeding there he lay."

EPIGRAMS.

On a Lady's Nose.

Miss in your nose an epigram's discern'd;
'Tis little—pretty—elegantly turn'd.

On a sun-beam playing on a mass of Snow, or Art and Innocence.

Mark in yon beam the world's destructive guile!
It melts us into ruin with a smile.

REVIEW.

OF MR. GOLDSMITH'S PUBLICATION, BY L'AMBIGU.

On the 10th January, 1807, appeared the orders in council, which certainly were very far from being conceived or framed upon the model of the Berlin decree. They merely forbade neutral vessels from sailing from one port of France to another. They did not require the commanders of vessels of war to seize American vessels going to France, but only to warn them not to continue their destination and to discontinue their voyage. These vessels, thus warned, had a thousand other markets open, in order to sell their cargoes and to buy one in return, without fear of being molested.

The American government not having shown any disposition to resist the Berlin decree, the English government thought proper to issue the orders in council of the 17th of November, 1807. These orders consider as in a state of blockade all the ports, where the British flag is excluded, and all the colonies of the enemy. They declare illegal all commerce in articles of the produce or manufactures of the said countries or colonies, and order that every vessel breaking them shall be condemned.

From the time these orders were issued, the same Americans or their friends, who did not breathe a syllable against the Berlin decree, lest the anger of their great prototype should destroy them as fire destroys the dried reeds, began to cry, howl & bark at London, like animals under the operation of being flayed alive. Pamphlets, Morning Chronicles, the forum, commenced their fire in confusion against the ministry. The Americans were like the Ass between two bundles of hay, not knowing which to eat. They gave the preference to England in their complaints; yet our orders were pure moderation in comparison with the ferocious decree of Berlin.

Shortly after the issuing of these orders, appeared the famous Milan decree of the 17th December, 1807, purporting that every vessel of what nation soever she might be, which should suffer herself to be visited by an English ship, should be denationalized, seized, condemned and confiscated. Thus, says Mr. Goldsmith, a neutral vessel is denationalized, because, for fear of her being sunk by a vessel of 100 guns, it submitted to a visit, which it could not oppose; it is punished not for its own fault, but for that of another. It cannot enter a port of France, nor even of an ally of France. Thus Napoleon makes at Milan law for Petersburg.

As it is said in London, that this Milan decree was a retaliation for the orders in council of November, Mr. Goldsmith cites a letter from Mr. Collin, Counsellor of State and Director General of the Customs in France, dated at Paris, 17th March, 1808, addressed to the proper authorities of France, Holland and Italy, as follows:

The acquiescence of all neutral vessels shall be easily effected, conformably with the orders of his imperial majesty which formally express, that all neutral vessels shall be sequestered, which have been visited by the enemy, whether before or after the decree of the 17th December, 1807, and the affair remitted to the council of prizes."

If Bonaparte had had at heart to secure his title of protector of the liberty of the seas against the Usurpatrice Island, (Isle Usurpatrice) as he has been pleased to call Great Britain, he should have imitated the conduct of the pretended tyrant of the seas, in allowing to neutrals a certain space of time to be informed of the existence of his piratical orders. But he preferred adopting for the rule of his conduct upon the ocean, that which Jonathan Wild, whom he appears to have taken for his model, had established for his depredations upon Terra Firma.

Upon this word usurpatrice the author gives a curious note as follows:

About three years ago, Bonaparte, in a speech to his servile senate, called Great Britain, the Isle Usurpatrice. This word was then a new expression in the French language, although it was the feminine of the word usurpateur. The word was adopted; and a distinguished bookseller of Paris, named Moutardier, published sometime afterwards, a new edition of the French Dictionary, under the title of Dictionary of the French Academy, with an appendix containing the new words introduced into the language since the French revolution, and the names of the persons, who introduced them. After the word usurpateur, masculine—usurpatrice, feminine, was placed to the name of the emperor Napoleon. Immediately the bookseller was arrested, and all the copies of the book were seized that could be found."

Bonaparte issued a new decree, dated 1808, in which he held out baits to the savors to induce them to inform against their captains. By the first article there was promised to every sailor or passenger who should declare to the chief of the customs, that such vessels had come from England, or had touched at a port occupied by the English troops, or had been visited by any English vessel, that he should receive one third of the net produce of the sale of the vessel and cargo, if the information should be found true.

In consequence Captain Raphael Linzee was condemned upon the information of his crew, purporting that he had a brother in the British navy. The crew were rewarded for their perfidy in a very suitable manner; they were impressed to serve in the French navy at Porto Ferrajo, and did not receive a 24 sous piece for their information.

Captain Linzee was treated in the most barbarous manner. He was thrown into the common prison at Porto Ferrajo. He was not permitted to write nor to communicate with any living creature, until the vessel and cargo were condemned. Then he took steps to enable him to go to Paris to interpose an appeal. Gen. Armstrong sent him a passport countersigned by Fouché, minister of Police. But the commissary of marine at Porto Ferrajo refused to let him go, under the pretext that his passport should have been countersigned by the minister of marine. It was for this purpose returned to Paris, and finally poor captain Linzee was released. When he arrived at Paris, he was placed en surveillance, always followed by a guard; he was prevented from writing and his claim was ineffectual.

The Milan decree condemned to confiscation every neutral vessel, which should have suffered herself to be visited by an English cruiser. The sworn interpreter of the council of prizes, being once charged to translate the papers found on board an American, which had been seized, found upon the log book of the captain, that his vessel had been hailed by a vessel of war, which permitted him to continue his voyage.
The council of prizes enjoined upon him to translate visite for hailed; but as he well knew the signification of the English word hailed, and as he was sworn, he did not wish to break his oath, nor get against his conscience, he refused to make the change required of him. He lost his place of translator for the council of prizes.

The council is composed of twelve members and of a president. The existing president is a brigand, named Berlier, who in time of the national convention obtained the nickname of Hostage Berlier, because it was he who proposed the hostage law.
By this law, the citizen Berlier proposed to detain as hostages all the relations of emigrants and to render them responsible for the conduct of the latter.

There is also in this council an imperial procureur, M. Collet Descoûls, an intelligent and very honorable man, and also a substitute.

The last substitute of the imperial procureur, to whom no successor has yet been appointed, was a certain Florent Guy-ot, ex-constitutionalist, who is now in prison at the hotel de la Force, having been accused of a conspiracy to assassinate Bonaparte, in concert with Jacquemont, sentinel and former chief of division, in the ministry of the Interior, and general Mallet and Cillet. The senators Geras and Tracy were also implicated in the conspiracy, as well as general Lemoine. The pretended plot was considered at Paris, as an history invented by the prefect of police, Crance, to ruin the friends of Fouché, minister of the police general, which succeeded to a certain extent. Those unfortunate men were thrown into prison in the month of May eighteen hundred and eight, and they yet remain there.

Causes are never publicly argued at the council of prizes; every thing passes in private. The advocate furnishes the judges with a printed memorial. The imperial procureur general is of right the counsel of the captors. It is he who furnishes the conclusions, which are almost always converted into an imperial decree; the judges whisper together a moment for form sake, and decide according to the opinion of the procureur general. This is not enough for Bonaparte as he wishes to know every thing that passes in the council of prizes, he keeps a spy there in person of one of the judges, who watches all his colleagues. This gallant man is M. le Camus de Neville. When the conclusions of M. Procureur are not adopted, which sometimes happens, though rarely, it is, M. le Camus de Neville, who guides the deliberations of those judges without difficulty.

About two years ago a decree of Bonaparte excluded all neutral vessels from the Elbe and Weser, and required the constituted authorities at the mouth of those rivers to inform the neutral vessels of this decree and not to let them enter. They were nevertheless permitted to arrive without any thing being said; but as soon as they were anchored at Hamburg and Bremen, they were sequestered and finally condemned by the council of prizes at Paris.
A. M. Dukerque, merchant at Hamburg, was sent to Paris, as deputy of the merchants, to enter claims; but he was not even given an hearing.

FOR SALE,

At the town of Ocoquan, on the 26th day of May next, at Public Auction,

That valuable MILL SEAT, late the property of Elisha Janney, SITUATE in the said town of Ocoquan.

On this site was erected, about eleven years ago, a spacious three story BRICK MILL HOUSE, which ever since has been occupied as a manufacturing mill, until about twelve months ago it was destroyed by fire—the stones and bricks of the former walls, and the iron work of the building are upon the spot, and would answer for a new mill, which might with these aids, be erected in time to grind the growing crop of wheat.
The advantages appertaining to this valuable property, which in the driest season never wants water, being furnished by the Ocoquan river, are so generally known as not to need a particular enumeration; suffice it to state, that it is situated in a healthy and flourishing little town at the Falls of the river, about 16 miles south of Alexandria, on the great stage road, leading north and south —in the heart of a wheat country—and has navigable water to the mill door, where vessels may come of sufficient burthen to carry 500 barrels of flour. With this valuable seat for water works of any description, there may be had about 250 acres of well timbered land, lying on the opposite side of the river.
For this property one-tenth of the purchase money will be required in hand, and the residue in three equal annual payments, with interest from the day of sale.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

MONDAY, APRIL 30.

The President of the United States has appointed George W. P. Curtis, Esq., Justice of the Peace for the county of Alexandria.

Markets at Cadiz dull. Pork 10 dollars; beef 8; bread 6; flour 11; codfish 4 50; herrings 4; butter 12 cents; lard 14; rice 10; tobacco seven; coffee 14 cents; sugar 10 dollars; molasses 25 cents. Duty on imports 7 and an half per cent; and on exports, 6 and half per cent.

The ship Montezuma, captain Spafford, of and belonging to Baltimore arrived at Tonnigen the 7th of March, after having been captured by a British privateer off Scilly, recaptured by the ship and came north about. Captain Spafford reports that the captain of the privateer informed him, that he had orders to capture all American vessels he fell in with, and that he had during his cruise captured 10 sail of Americans and sent them into England; that the privateer was then bound in for a supply of men, having put the most of his crew on board of prizes.

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.

The Thomas Jefferson.—Among the American vessels burnt by the French in the Bay of Cadiz, was the ship Thos. Jefferson of this port. The information already published, respecting that cruel and barbarous transaction, is confirmed by the following extract of a letter from the supercargo of this vessel. The letter was dated at Cadiz, on the 10th of March, and was received by the owners yesterday.

"Immediately on my being informed of the situation of the ship, I got a letter from Mr. Hackney (the consul) to the commander of the gun boats on that station, soliciting assistance to endeavor to save some part of the cargo. With these I sent an officer and 4 men, whilst I exerted myself to send them still more efficient aid from hence. This, however, I soon found to be impracticable. On Friday the officer and men returned, not having been able to reach the ship; but they witnessed her destruction from on board a man of war. It seems that when the tide left the Thomas Jefferson, a herd of Frenchmen marched down, drove captain Densmore and crew out of her and immediately set her on fire, when she was entirely destroyed. Mr. —, who was on board the ship, was also marched off with capt. Densmore.

"During the violence of the tempest, admiral Purvis rendered indiscriminate assistance to every object within his reach. I lament to add, that he lost two officers and 12 men in these humane endeavors."

Another letter from the same gentleman, dated the 22d of March, states that "no accounts had been received of capt. Densmore, nor any of the American masters and crews. The French had not permitted any communication with Cadiz."

April 28.

Latest from Spain.—By the ship United States, capt. Girdon, in the very short passage of 25 days from Cadiz, Spanish papers to the 29th ult. are received. They however contain nothing either new or interesting. We are informed verbally, that the French remained masters of all the country on the opposite shores of the Bay of Cadiz. They were left in quiet possession, entirely unmolested, and were working constantly in strengthening their posts. They had commenced a heavy fire upon the Carracas, or naval stores, with red hot shot. Skirmishes between the advanced parties occasionally took place, but nothing of any great consequence occurred. The remains of Albuquerque's army, from 8 to 10,000 men, were on the Island; about 2000 English troops and the same number of Portuguese, commanded by English officers. In the town the inhabitants and military spoke confidently of their being able to hold out.

The government was conducted by the Junta and the regency, in conjunction, the former taking care, however, to retain the sole and absolute control of the finances. In consequence of this, a rupture had taken place between Albuquerque and the Junta—Albuquerque had lost much of his popularity.

The capt. of the port had been taken up and imprisoned, for a trifling communication with the enemy.

Mr. Wallcut had arrived from England, as ambassador to the new government. Gen. Graham had also arrived, and superseded gen. Stewart. A large reinforcement of British troops was daily expected.

BALTIMORE, April 27.

Letter from Tonnigen.—By the fast sailing ship George and Albert, capt. Norman, 30 days from Tonnigen, we have accounts printed and written, to 24th March. From Hamburg and Altona papers, with which we were politely favored, translations follow.

By this arrival we learn, that prices in the north of Europe were not very flattering; exchange on England fluctuating; some American property liberated, much yet in jeopardy, and apprehensions not pleasant. The official Petersburg Gazette denies the pretended rupture with France, charging it to the printers of Breslau. Russian army advancing on Turkey; large armies rapidly organizing by the latter. The Bavarian army reduced. Holland filled with dismay at its expected fate; while the Rhenish provinces are promised (30th March) new acquisitions, and Pomerania restored to the Swedes; between whom, Austria and France a closer union (God help the weak) is to be formed. The new empress would leave Vienna 12th March. King Jerome and his queen, (or rather she foremost, for she precedes him a day's ride) were flying about the continent; the last place they touched at was Frankfurt, March 12, whence they departed for Paris; no doubt to sign the receipt for Hanover, of which his Westphalian majesty has now formal possession. Besides those troops in Hamburg and other northern districts, a French corps possesses Lubeck. The Master of Frankfurt on the Main (whose previous title we have forgotten) was, at the last frolic, promoted to the rank of grand duke.

In the Senate of the United States.

TUESDAY, April 24.

The bill for continuing the charter of the Bank of Alexandria was read a third time and passed.

Mr. Meigs reported a bill allowing compensation to Robert Robinson; which was read and passed to a second reading.

Mr. Smith of Maryland, from the committee to whom was referred the bill, entitled "An act concerning commercial intercourse between the United States and G. Britain and France and their dependencies, and for other purposes," reported the same with the following amendments.

"Sec. 1, line 2—Strike out from the word that," to the end of the section, and insert, "from and after the passage of this act, no British or French armed vessel shall be admitted to enter the harbors or waters under the jurisdiction of the United States; but every British or French armed vessel is hereby interdicted, except when they shall be forced in by distress, by the danger of the sea, or when charged with despatches or business from their government, or coming as a public packet for the conveyance of letters, in which cases as well as in all others, when they shall be permitted to enter, the commanding officer shall immediately report his vessel to the collector of the district, stating the object or causes of his entering the harbors or waters of the U. States; and shall take such position therein as shall be assigned him by such collector, and shall conform himself, his vessel and crew, to such regulations respecting health, repairs, supplies, stay, intercourse and departure, as shall be signified to him by the said collector, under the authority and directions of the President of the U. States, and not conforming thereto, shall be required to depart from the U. States."

Strike out the second, third and fourth sections and insert.

"Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That all pacific intercourse with any interdicted foreign armed vessels, the officers or crew thereof are hereby forbidden; and if any person shall afford any aid to such armed vessel, either in repairing her, or in furnishing her with provisions or crew with supplies, of any kind or in any manner whatsoever, or if any pilot shall assist in navigating the said armed vessel, contrary to this prohibition, unless for the purpose of carrying her beyond the limits and jurisdiction of the United States the person or persons so offending, shall be liable to be bound to their good behavior, and shall moreover forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding two thousand dollars, to be recovered upon indictment or information, in any court of competent jurisdiction: one moiety thereof to the treasury of the United States, and the other moiety to the person who shall give information and prosecute the same to effect: Provided, That if the prosecution shall be by a public officer, the whole forfeiture shall accrue to the treasury of the United States."

"Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the President of the United States, be, and hereby is authorized to employ the public armed vessels, in protecting the commerce of the United States and to issue instructions which shall be conformable to the laws and usages of nations, for the government of the ships, which may be employed in that service."

Sec. 5—Strike out from the word "a" for "said" in the 17th line, to the end of the section."

Congress of the United States.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, April 27.

[CONCLUDED.]

[The bill to extend the time of payment for public lands in certain cases, (which was under consideration when our report closed) was passed. The question on the final passage was taken by ayes and noes, and stood, ayes 68, noes 25.

The house went into committee of the whole on the bill authorizing the erection of certain light houses—Mr. MACON in the chair. The bill was reported with an amendment. And the house adjourned.

SATURDAY, April 28.

Mr. Milnor reported a resolution, which was passed in the house, to defray the expenses incurred under the orders of the house, by the committee appointed to enquire into the cause or causes of the great mortality in general Wilkinson's late army, and the committee appointed to enquire into the conduct of general Wilkinson. The resolution allows the witnesses who have been before the committees three dollars each, a day, for attendance, and twelve and a half cents for mileage.

A resolution was received from the senate proposing an amendment to the constitution, prohibiting a citizen from receiving any title of nobility, pension, salary or emolument from any emperor, prince or potentate, on pain of forfeiting his citizenship. Read twice and referred to a committee of the whole on the state of the union.

A bill from the senate to erect the territory of New Orleans into a state, was read twice and referred to a committee of the whole.

A bill from the senate for the relief of — Robertson, was read twice and made the order of the day for Monday.

On motion of Mr. Randolph, the house resumed the consideration of the bill to reduce the naval establishment of the United States.

After considerable debate, Mr. Munford moved to postpone indefinitely.

This motion was negatived, ayes 40, noes 54.

After taking the ayes and noes at least half a dozen times on various amendments and propositions; an amendment passed to authorize the president to keep in service, such number of frigates and armed vessels as he may think proper, and to lay the remainder up in ordinary; provided the number of seamen in actual service shall not exceed one thousand four hundred and twenty-five.

Mr. Randolph moved to amend the bill so as to reduce the marine corps to four companies of seventy-two men, one captain and three lieutenants each. This amendment was carried.

Adjourned.

FOR SALE.

A valuable new MERCHANT MILL, in complete repair, with two pair of French burrs for wheat and one pair of Alleghany stones for corn. There is machinery of every description for conveying the wheat from the wagon and from the packing with a very small portion of manual labor. It may be tended with less than half the labor in common mills. It is situate on the main turnpike road leading from Ashby's Gap to Alexandria, on a good stream of water as any in the parts. It is capable of making 80 barrels of flour every twenty four hours—it is also expected the new paved road will come directly by it, which will make the carriage of flour to Alexandria short, cheap and easy.

Any person wishing to purchase will do well to make immediate application, as possession will be given the first of July. It is presumed that any person wishing to purchase would want to see the premises, where the terms will be made known by
